EXTERNAL

I can't attend the meeting today to hear more details about the potential new vacation rental ordinance, but I do have question. Would this not be a good time to also examine the county's policies for homes that are being purchased by multiple buyers, who then use those homes for vacations? It doesn't fall under the rental category, but only because of the way ownership of a house is being defined. These homes have the same negative effects on a neighborhood that vacation rentals do, but at this point, to my knowledge, nothing is being done to prevent houses from belonging to multiple buyers and used as a place to live for a short time.
